A SON'S LOVE FOR HIS PARENTS

Matt Smith's father passed away on July 5. He was 90 years-old and lived in Palo Alto, CA. He posted this touching tribute on Facebook. It spoke to me deeply because it almost mirrored my experience with my parents and the cycle of life. I know everyone in our club is not on Facebook, so I am sharing Matt's message with you:

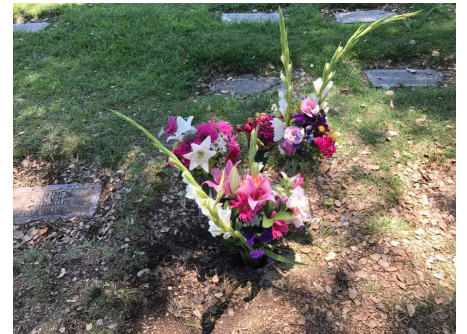

"Peace at Last...A week ago last Wednesday, on June 28, 2017, my father passed away. He was 90 years old. My mother, on the other hand, died in 1975, just before I graduated from high school, when she was just 49 years old.

I was at my mother's bedside when she died, and sat with her for the final three hours of her life. Watching my mother die was my first experience ever with death, let alone that of a loved one. During my mom's last three hours of life, she underwent the most agonizing pain I've ever seen anybody go through; she was delirious, and there were sounds coming out of her body that were not at all human. But when she finally died, the look of peace and tranquility that came over her face was none like I've ever seen before or since, and I found peace in her death.

I was not with my father when he died, but I know that he went through his own personal hell in doing so during the past several days of his life. This may seem, perhaps, a bit unnerving, but I did not expect to experience the peace and joy that I did when my brother, sister, and I placed my father's remains next to my mothers this past Friday, July 7.

My mothers remains had been placed at Alta Mesa Cemetery in Palo Alto, California, in May 1975, 42 years ago. When we placed my father's remains next to her, it occurred to me that the cycle of life had been completed and that after 42 years my mother and my father were finally together again. While I am sad at their departure from this earth, I am very much grateful that they now lie together with one another. The circle of life has been completed, and all is as it should be. They are together, once again, at last, and I feel peace and tranquility in my heart, once again. Peace at Last."
